TWO RESIDENT SPECIES were added to the British fauna during 1994, Ectoedemia amani Svensson was taken as an adult by Barry Dickerson in Huntingdonshire; it may be more widespread, but like most bark miners is not easy to find in the larval state. Caryocolum blandelloides Karsholt was only described in 1981 from the eastern Danish island of Bornholm; it is very interesting that it has been found in a remote part of Scotland by Robert Hoare. Depending on whether or not you regard the Channel Isles as part of Britain, Evergestis limbata (L.) which we reported from Guernsey in 1990 could be counted as a third addition; to refer to the Isle of Wight as mainland Britain may seem a little strange to those islanders, but we hope the distinction from the Channel Isles clarifies the meaning.

Whilst it is not a new species, the first generation f. oneratella Zeller of C. falconipennella (Hübner) could pass for one and it is remarkable that this should never have been noted in the British Isles before.

It is worth drawing the attention of readers to some rare species in the systematic list: Bankesia douglasii (Stainton), after brief appearances in Kent and Yorkshire, has now turned up again close to its original site in Hampshire. Elachista eskoi Kyrki & Karnoven is still known only from a small number of specimens, as is Eucosma metzneriana (Treitschke) which is now represented by single captures at five scattered localities. Aplota palpella (Haworth), Cydia illutana (Herrich-Schäffer), Mecyna flavalis (Denis & Schiffermüller) and Salebriopsis albicilla (Herrich-Schäffer) in fresh localities are particularly noteworthy. An extension of the known range of species is especially remarkable when they are recorded in another country in the British Isles, and Stigmella svenssoni (Johansson) in Ireland, Phyllonorycter strigulatella (Lienig & Zeller), Swammerdamia compunctella Herrich-Schäffer in Wales and Elachista utonella (Frey) in Scotland are such examples.

As usual there are further records of recently discovered species: Mompha bradleyi Riedl and Cochylis molliculana Zeller; Athrips rancidella (Herrich-Schäffer) and Gelechia senticetella Staudinger becoming more firmly established in the home counties. Spreading species continue, notably Blastobasis lignea Walsingham, B. decolorella Wollaston and even Tachystola acroxantha (Meyrick) (assigned to a new genus) has ventured further from its base in the south-west.

New information on the biology of species is increasingly difficult to find in Britain, but data are presented about Piercea luridana (Gregson), and other interesting foodplant records are listed in the systematic section.

Migration records will be included in other articles in this journal, the chief species of interest in this category below is Euchromius ocella (Haworth).

Literature published since our last Review includes Volume 9 of Microlepidoptera Palaearctica which covers half of the Pterophoridae by Ernst Arenberger. As usual in this series the text is in German and the price very high, despite production errors. This publication was closely followed by the first in a new series on Microlepidoptera of Europe, also on the Pterophoridae, by Cees Gielis. In this volume the whole family is treated, although briefly, in English, and at a more reasonable price. For those who scan the European literature there is a series Die Lepidopterenfauna der Rheinland und Westfalens, and the Momphidae by Sjaak Koster, 1994, is illustrated by good colour photographs and genitalia drawings. In the series Die Tierwelt Deutschlands "Flachliebmoten (Depressariidae)" 1995 by H.-J. Hannemann includes all species known from Britain. Another well illustrated book, on Pyralidae, by F. Slamka is Die Zünslerfalter (Pyraloidea) Mitteleuropas. An Irish microlepidoptera check list by Ken Bond was published in Bull. Ir. biogeog. Soc. 18: 176-262. This collates the references to additions to the Irish fauna published since Beirne's 1941 list, using the nomenclature and arrangement of the 1985 Danish checklist by Schnack; there are some useful notes on species doubtfully recorded. A list of the Lepidoptera of Shetland, including microlepidoptera, was published in 1995 by the Shetland Entomological Group, compiled by Mike Pennington; this includes some dozen new Shetland records made in 1994 which are not repeated in the systematic section below. A review of the scarce and threatened ethmiine, stathmopodine and gelechiid moths of Great Britain by M.S. Parsons, published by JNCC is a most useful compilation of data with an assessment of the status of each species treated. As usual an important source of records is the report of the Annual Exhibition in the British Journal of Entomology and Natural History 8: 188-194 from which only new vice-county records and others of special note are included in this article.

The full systematic list which follows includes records submitted by recorders and those which have been published in entomological journals. Many thanks to those whose records are included, as always these are identified by their initials: D.J.L. Agassiz, M.V. Albertini, B.R. Baker, H.E. Beaumont, K.P. Bland, K.G.M. Bond, the late E.S. Bradford, K. Cooper, M.F.V. Corley, P.A. Crowther, A.M. Davis, B. Dickerson, A.M. Emmet, R.G. Gaunt, B. Goater, M.W. Harper, R.J. Heckford, D. Hipperson, R.J.B. Hoare, D.H. Howton, J.R. Langmaid, D.V. Manning, D. O'Keefe, S.A.

Knill-Jones, S.M. Palmer, M.S. Parsons, C.W. Plant, J. Robbins (Porlock), A.N.B. Simpson, B.F. Skinner, R.A. Softly, P.A. Sokoloff, M.J. Sterling, P.H. Sterling & M.R. Young. The initials SEFM refer to the Scottish Entomologists' Field Meeting which comprised KPB, MWH, R.P. Knill-Jones, JRL, R.M. Palmer, ANBS, P. Waring and MRY. RIS is the Rothamsted Insect Survey.

Journal titles are abbreviated for economy of space: Ent. Gaz. for the Entomologist's Gazette, Ent. Rec. for the Entomologist's Record and Journal of Variation, and BJENH for the British Journal of Entomology and Natural History. Numbers in the left-hand column are those from A checklist or label list of British Lepidoptera by J.D. Bradley & D.S. Fletcher (1986).

Again an attempt has been made to identify new vice-county records; these are underlined and in bold type. The maps held by A.M. Emmet have been used for this purpose and we are grateful to Maitland Emmet for providing this information.

Many records which do not constitute new vice-county records have been excluded; copies of the full list of records submitted are available from David Agassiz.
